

« Kalute »

Kalute dates, also known as "Kalooteh" or "Kaluta" dates, are characterized by their smooth, light brown skin and elongated shape. These dates have a tender texture and a sweet, honey-like flavor that makes them exceptionally appealing. Grown in the southern regions of Iran, Kalute dates are often enjoyed fresh due to their soft and moist nature. They are a rich source of energy, vitamins, and minerals, making them a nutritious and delicious addition to any diet.

« Rabbi »

Rabbi dates are known for their deep reddish-black color and their extremely juicy and sweet flesh. They have a unique taste that combines a slight hint of caramel with a rich sweetness, making them a favorite among date enthusiasts. Rabbi dates are versatile and can be enjoyed on their own as a healthy snack or incorporated into various dishes such as breakfast cereals, ice creams, and baked goods.

« Mazafati »

Mazafati dates (Kimia dates), Known for their luscious, dark appearance, Mazafati dates are highly prized for their soft texture and sweet, caramel-like flavor. These dates are harvested at peak ripeness, which gives them their rich, juicy consistency. Often referred to as "Bam dates" because they are predominantly grown in the Bam region of Iran, Mazafati dates are packed with essential nutrients, including vitamins, fiber, and potassium. Their natural sweetness and smooth texture make them a popular snack and an excellent ingredient in a variety of culinary dishes.
